
His Britannic Majesty's Ships on the China Station.

CHARACTER: Harold, 35—husband, male, 21—a fiancée.

SCENE. A first-class carriage. The train is nearly—London.
Harold: I say now, we shall be there in half an hour: we must be serious. I had a hard job to get this day off to do our shopping, and we've got a awful lot to do.
By-Jove, tackled the Stores list after dinner yesterday, but I got so fascinated with reading of this various kinds of biscuits

Harold: Very well, let's go ahead. Now what shall we begin with? What comes first when you go into a spoon? The floor I suppose. That means carpet first.

You know, I am all for having one of those soft fluffy ones that your feet sink into, like velvet, you know, or short grass. Green's a good colour, too.

Elsie: You mean Axminster. That would be jolly in the drawing-room. But I forget, mother says we mustn't choose things here and there haphazard. We must have a colour-scheme and stick to it.

Harold: Well, I suppose she's right. We mustn't have red curtains, blue wall-paper, and green carpet, I suppose. Still, we've got to start somewhere. What about wall-paper? I've got the address of the best shop in London. We'll go there first, and then we shall have the pattern-book in our hands for choosing the rest.

Elsie: Yes, dear, only—only you know Uncle James is dead set on our going to his little man in Hampstead. We simply can't afford to offend him. I heard from him yesterday; he'd got heaps of pattern and had chosen two or three he was sure we'd like.

Harold: Very kind of him, I'm sure.

Elsie: Oh, well; how about a piano?
They take a long time, and the piano people have a most absurd way of playing silly scales and runs to show off their paces.

I meant to tell you my friend Curfew, a musical critic of the "Mush-room" told me yesterday he'd found the very thing for us, good as bought it in fact, and, poor chap, he'd be awfully in the cart if he didn't have it, and he's an excellent judge, too.

Elsie (a trifle sadly): I must say I would have liked my own piano. Harold Harold: Oh, well: come, there's more we can do. There's the dining-room furniture, what those shop Jolinnies call 'suite.' Shall we do it now, or second-hand? It's rather fun poking about in rotten little shops, but you're apt to get awfully done, though. Why, I knew Harold: Well, what about him?

Harold: Sponge baskets, stair marking-ink.

of that, the best joke in the world, my word. Now what do you think, next-door neighbour, old Judge Carragher, has got a son who's frightfully clever at electric light, topping good fall too, and Jim McCarragher promised he'd do us for next to nothing with patent Siyphum burners and all complete. He makes all the fittings himself. Cle what? Oh, don't look so gloomy, Elsie. There's lots left. A pretty tea service now!

Elsie (desperately). But, Harriet, mother insists upon choosing that her Poor mother, she wants to do something and we can't very well —

Harold (getting angry). Oh, well; that is then. I needn't have taken my

No. 548 off after all. It's outrageous. Every-should I have his things? You have consulted me first. And that's Mr Curfew. I know I sha'n't like piano. You know I particularly want choose that. I think it's horrid of you Harold (involutarily): Oh, damn Elsie (weeping): How can you so cruel. I call it very-much to swear when I couldn't h-h-h

Harold: Oh, I say, dearest: I'm awful brute, I really am. I didn't mean really, it was all a mistake. Now mustn't cry. Please don't cry, Elsie.
(Five minutes interval.) Harold (diffidently): Has anybody come to help with the kitchen table?
Elsie: No, dear. And, Harold, I body going to make the hat pegs for me.

INTERNATIONAL MAPS.

The prospect of at last having a series of maps which shall be of an international character and follow some rational system in regard to names, tinting and reproduction of physical features seems to be almost on the verge of realization.
The recent international conference in London has solved many of the difficulties hitherto lying in the path of this most desirable project. As one of the delegates, Mr. BAILEY WILKES, of the United States Geological Survey, recently explained, the success of the scheme was assured by the waiving of more than one ancient national prejudice which had previously stood as a barrier to it. France courteously accepted the meridian of Greenwich as an initial meridian, while England agreed to the use of the metric system.
It is provided, however, that each country may duplicate the metric measurements with its own, in the part of the map intended for its own use. The new maps will resemble very closely those of the United States Geological Survey. "In writing and spelling names the Latin alphabet alone may be used and the spelling shall be that of the official maps of the country represented. Thus the international map will show nothing of Russian or Chinese script. You will look in vain for Florence, but will find Firenze; instead of Rome, Roma; of Flushing, Vlissingen, of Vienna, Wien, and so forth.
There was no dissent from this last ruling except in one instance. In odd contradiction to the general liberality of feeling, it was emphatically declared that European geographers could not permit Stambul, the Turkish name, to replace Constantinople. For China the adopted spelling was to be that of the post and customs service, and in all colonies or protectorates the names are to be spelled in accordance with the usage of the governing country." The delegate from Hungary presented the grave difficulty which confronts the cartographer in the fact that nearly all Hungarian towns have two names, one Hungarian and the other German, and some of them have as many as five names, all of which are currently used by the distinct elements of the population. But it was pointed out that this difficulty affects but one or two sheets of the great atlas of the world, and that the question of choosing among these names might well be left to the Hungarian Government.

Now to turn to another aspect of the question. There is perhaps nothing which more strikingly distinguishes new maps from old ones, or maps of one nationality from those of another, than the manner in which valleys, hills, and mountains are represented, whether it be by drawing the shapes of mountains, as in Chinese maps, or by covering the paper with short dashes, sometimes called hachures, which show the way the water runs, or by horizontal lines that delineate the contours of the slopes, or by shading with high light and shadow, as if the map were a relief model. Hach-ures, contours, and relief-shading, or combinations of two or even of all these methods, characterize modern topographic maps, and one of the most difficult questions before the conference was to harmonize the various methods in current use.

"In maps prepared by the United States Geological Survey contour lines alone are used, and the delineation of mountain-forms by means of them has been brought to a higher degree of graphic expression than ever before.
This is due to the fact that the American topographer regards his work as a profession rather than as a side-issue of military training, which is the position which is held abroad. In Germany and Austria the method of exhibiting slopes by means of hachures has replaced all other systems, because it is so applied that the proportion of dark lines to intervening light spaces bears a mathematical relation to the steepness of the slope. Level plains are white, and slopes 40° are almost black, and other slopes are shaded according to their grade. These maps are peculiarly adapted to military purposes, since an officer can judge at a glance the nature of a declivity and whether it is possible for infantry, cavalry, or perhaps artillery; but these advantages do not everywhere have weight, and the method is one which is too expensive in execution and too limited in usefulness to be widely adopted. France has brought relief-shading to a very high degree of perfection, and leads the world in the artistic beauty of her topographic maps. The method of representing the topographic relief of the surface, which the conference adopted, consists in the main of generalized contours, which shall be so drawn as not to unduly obscure other features of the map, and, in addition, shading is to be used to bring out those minor features which can not be adequately represented by contours. The conference in London adopted a scale of colours which would be printed on different portions of the map, according to the height above sea. The depths of seas and lakes will be shown by shades of blue; the lower land, from the coast to 300 metres, by three tints of green, shading into pale buff, which at 500 metres passes into light browns that grow darker up to 3,000 metres. Above 3,000 metres the brown tints tone into rosy violet, and fade away to white in the highest summits beyond 7,000 metres."

The preparation and printing of maps is a most elaborate process. "Pedometer" describes in Travel and Exploration the system pursued by Messrs. W. and A. K. Johnston, Ltd., the well-known map publishers of Edinburgh, when printing a school map, as follows:—"The projection is constructed and the outline of the map drawn. A tracing is fitted over this, and the names that are required to be inserted are put on this.
These two are then handed to the photo-engraver, who makes one set of plates for the outline, which will eventually be printed in blue, and the second set of plates for the writing, which will be printed in black. It is, of course, essential that these two shall fit with the greatest accuracy, so that a town would be sure to appear on the correct side of the river, or, in the case of roads or railways, so that the river would fit so accurately that it would run under the bridges which are shown on the road. The transfers are pulled from these plates, those for the blue being put down to one stone and those for black to another.
Here again the greatest care is required, so that the transfers do not stretch, but shall fit perfectly. These stones are passed on to the printing machine, and the blue and black are printed. The draughtsman then proceeds to make a copy for the hills. This is handed over to the lithographic artist, who receives the stones from the printer, which have been marked by what is technically known as a set-off, that is, a copy of the map is printed very fully charged with ink. This is dusted over with a light powder, either blue or red, turned down on to the stone (which has been washed with turpentine), and passed through the press. To this surface the light powder adheres, leaving the outline of the map fairly clearly marked. The lithographic artist is then able, with the air-brush, to draw the hills from the copy, the outline of the map being washed away as soon as its purpose is served. The hills are printed, and then, working with the set-off, the colour stones are prepared: usually three colours—blue, red and yellow—are involved in the printing, and by means of combinations, a series of colours, such as purple, green, brown, etc., are arrived at. The printing of the map is now complete, and it is handed over to the map mounter, who mounts it on a sheet of cloth, sizes it, and fixes it to rods, when it is ready for selling."

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Owing to the extraordinary rise in the price of opium the Indian Government revenue during April from this source is 113 lakhs ahead of the estimate.

Just after seven o'clock this morning the motor sloop belonging to Jack A.
Tsi caught fire while lying near Douglas Wharf and was completely destroyed.

Reports of heavy rains reach us from Canton, Swatow, Amoy and south China generally. They were most welcome everywhere and there seems hope now of the rice crop being saved.

The U. S. cruisers, Chattanooga, and Cleveland have left Cavite for San Francisco. The Charleston follows later, though it is highly probable that she may return to the States via Suez.

Lord Kitchener has been the chief guest at the Australia banquet in connection with the Anglo-Japan exhibition.
He said he was glad that Australia and New Zealand had adopted a uniform military plan. The home authorities would give all assistance to enable Australia to attain a worthy place among the armed sister nations of the Empire.

On Empire Day, eight hundred children took part in a special Empire Day celebration at the Japan-British Exhibition in London. There were various sports, including swimming competitions. Prince Arthur of Connaught accompanied Prince Fushimi to the Exhibition and conducted him through the various sections.

The Phoenix Club have entered into occupancy of their new premises in King's Buildings, adjoining the Institution of Engineers and Shipbuilders, and it is hoped that a new era of prosperity has been dawned. The Nippon Club will in future be housed in the old rooms of the Phoenix Club in Wyndham-street, formerly the Club Germania.

The number of naval cadets on board the two Japanese training ships due here on the 7th inst. is 189 all told. It is the Japanese community of Hongkong who are entertaining the ships' companies at the Race-course during their stay, and not the Hongkong Jockey Club, the latter kindly placing the grand stand, etc., at their disposal.

The London Post office intends to issue a sevenpenny stamp which will be useful for foreign letters weighing between three and four ounces, for inland parcels weighing between five and seven pounds, for registered inland parcels weighing between two and three pounds, and for the telegram services. It will be slate-grey in colour, and will show the figure 7d. on a shield in each of the upper angles and the King's head in an oval surmounted by a crown.

John Chinaman can be relied upon to make the best of a situation. On Friday a native was arrested on a charge of obtaining money by false pretences. He had been telling his companions that he intended getting a finished photograph of His Majesty King George V done with the view of sending it to His Majesty on the occasion of his coronation next year. In this way he obtained $6.40 from ten suspecting folk. At the Magistrate's he was remanded until Wednesday.

The news from Yokohama is to the effect that Miss Irvine—whose melancholy death we reported on Wednesday—was turning up the wick of a kerosene lamp in her bedroom when it exploded, setting fire to the carpet and then her dress. In her fright she rushed from the room, then broke away from her brother who ran to her assistance, and dashed into the road.
By this time she was one mass of flames.
The unfortunate young lady recovered consciousness shortly before she died.
The funeral was attended by over three hundred people.

SHOOTING AFFAIR AT CANTON.

European Shot.

Just before going to press this evening we heard that a European Customs Officer, named Martin, of the Chinese Customs, had been shot this morning while on duty at the Kwong Tung, when that vessel was lying at Canton.
The deed is supposed to have been done by pirates, or smugglers, or miscreants of that sort. Mr. Martin received one bullet in the head while another lodged in the stomach, and altogether six shots were fired.

The injured man was conveyed to hospital, but it is not known whether he is alive or dead.

The above news is given to us as a rumour but our source of information is very authentic and reliable.

RUMOURS ABOUT THE
BEDFORD.

Strange Tales from the North.

NOTHING KNOWN AT NAVAL YARD.
The persistency with which rumours of an alarming nature crop up in Hongkong, only to be discovered as totally unfounded when searching enquiries are made, is amazing.

The latest instance of this kind has come to light to-day, all kinds of stories having been circulated in the Colony since Friday night in reference to alleged disasters which H.M.S. Bedford is stated to have experienced in the North. First of all it was reported that the gallant ship had been lost in a typhoon on Friday morning.
Later this was toned down to the less alarming tale that she had lost some of her super-structure, including her funnels, and was being towed to Hongkong by a Blue-funnel liner. How the rumours originated it is difficult to state, even supposing that the vessel has been caught in some of the bad weather now prevailing on the Japan coast. Dame Gossip has had no time in getting her embroidery frame to work, that is evident.

We are pleased to be able to state that there does not appear to be the slightest reason for the above tales, for on enquiry at the Commodore's Office we were informed that absolutely nothing had been heard of such disasters, and that if anything of the nature indicated had occurred they would certainly have had news. This habit of spreading wholly unreliable and untrue rumours is really going a little too far.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Lady May is to be "At home" at Mountain Lodge on Fridays at 4.30 p.m.

To-morrow is the thirty-seventh anniversary of the acceptance of the crown of Greece by King George of Greece.

Judge Heron, father-in-law of President Taft and once a law partner of President Rutherford B. Hayes, is dying.

Mr. H. W. Kilby, of the International Banking Corporation, is shortly leaving Hongkong, having been transferred on promotion to the Singapore branch of the bank.

At the advanced age of 84 years Dr. Alexander McLaren, twice president of the Baptist Union of Great Britain and Ireland, and one of the greatest preachers of his time, passed away, on May 5, at Edinburgh.

A rumour is current that Mr. Bryce, British Ambassador to Washington, has sent in his letter of resignation, the explanation assigned being that he sees he will not be able to fulfil his duties adequately under the new King.

A marriage has been arranged between Captain Gerald Willoughby, Paul Haslam, of the Royal Irish Regiment, only son of Mr. W. H. Haslam, formerly of Hankow, China, and Margery Maclean, youngest daughter of the late W. B. Slayter, M.D., M.R.C.S., of Halifax, Nova Scotia.

One native charged another at the Magistrate's to-day with stealing a sum of $300 and also with attempting to rob Mr. Otto Kong Sing was for the complaint, but his Worship (Mr. J. R. Wood) did not believe the evidence and dismissed both charges. It appears that the men were enemies, and it is thought that false information was laid against the defendant.

The King's demise has slightly pacified English politicians and it seems probable a truce will be called for the present year.
The Observer, an important Conservative journal, admits that there is some justice in the Liberal case against the House of Lords; and, on the other hand, Mr. Redmond has confessed in the course of a speech just delivered at Cork that "delay in the constitutional struggle is unavoidable." This means that the leader of the Irish Nationalists will not now exercise pressure on the Premier regarding the veto question.

diarrhoea, which can be controlled by giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and is to give the prescribed dose after each and then castor oil to cleanse the system.

It is safe and sure. For sale by all chem-
